PG&E Hosts Practical Examiner Workshop

Mindful of the June deadline for crane operators to be certified in the state of California, Pacific Gas & Electric (PG&E) recently hosted a CCO Practical Examiners Workshop at its Livermore, California facility.

PG&E mobilized two Terex boom trucks and P&H rough terrain in the small and large telescopic boom crane categories. A total of nine PG&E crane operators participated in the Workshops and are now authorized to administer the CCO practical examination in these two categories.

By arranging to have NCCCO conduct a Workshop specifically for the company, PG&E is now able to schedule practical exams testing of its several hundred crane operators as and when it chooses at its own locations statewide.

For information on hosting a CCO Practical Examiner Accreditation Workshop, contact Shawna Parham, Program Coordinator at sparham@nccco.org.
